Hannah Dolski is an associate in the firm's Litigation practice group. The focus of her practice is in civil litigation procedure, employment, contract drafting and negotiations, and professional liability. Hannah has experience in bankruptcy, corporate, regulatory, construction, and products liability matters. During her judicial externship in the Arizona Federal District Court, Hannah drafted orders in various areas of civil law for the Honorable Judge Tuchi. Hannah was a teaching assistant for torts and civil procedure, on the executive board for the Women Law Students Association, and was a research assistant for the school's MLS (Master of Legal Studies) program. Before entering law school, Hannah obtained her undergraduate degree at McGill University in Canada and spent her summers interning in Singapore.
