A fixture in the “Duke City” for nearly two decades, Lewis Roca’s Albuquerque office has the experience and resources to provide skilled, innovative, and cost-effective legal guidance to local and national businesses. Engaged in a region where the aerospace and defense and energy technology industries flourish, our lawyers advise companies at the forefront of these sectors throughout a variety of matters, including government contracts, real estate, construction, intellectual property, finance, litigation, corporate, labor and employment, environmental, and gaming.

We actively encourage our lawyers and staff to become community service leaders by partnering with nonprofit organizations, pro bono programs, and civic initiatives that focus on enriching the lives of the people within the communities we live and serve.
