Immersed in a prospering world of innovation and high technology, Lewis Roca's San Francisco office continues to thrive alongside its community of entrepreneurs, startup companies, financial services companies, and tech giants. Our lawyers are no strangers to operating at the Bay Area's speed, making a point to meet and exceed the demands of fast-moving innovators. Equipped with in-depth legal knowledge and robust technical backgrounds, we provide cutting-edge counsel to a wide variety of companies operating within high-tech spaces, including medical devices, biotechnology and pharmaceutical, artificial intelligence and robotics, electronics, telecommunications, transportation and infrastructure, financial services, and computer systems and software.

Embracing a tradition of professional success and community leadership, our San Francisco office prides itself on providing approachable, practical engagement in the areas we serve. Involvement within our community remains paramount and we are proud to partner with local organizations to support charitable, pro bono, and civic initiatives.
